

EAST - WEST CENTER
<http://www.eastwestcenter.org/>

Recent Publications in the Studies in Asian Security Book Series

The following are new titles in the East-West Center book series, Studies in Asian Security, published by Stanford University Press. Order these publications from <http://www.sup.org> or Chicago Distribution Center, (800)621-2736. Abstracts of the publications appear after the listing of titles below.

* RELUCTANT RESTRAINT: THE EVOLUTION OF CHINA'S NONPROLIFERATION POLICIES AND PRACTICES, 1980-2004, by Evan S. Medeiros. 2007.

* WHY TAIWAN? GEOSTRATEGIC RATIONALES FOR CHINA'S TERRITORIAL INTEGRITY, by Alan M. Wachman. 2007.

RELUCTANT RESTRAINT: THE EVOLUTION OF CHINA'S NONPROLIFERATION POLICIES AND PRACTICES, 1980-2004, by Evan S. Medeiros. Studies in Asian Security. Stanford: Stanford University Press, 2007. 376 pp. Cloth, $65.00.
<http://www.eastwestcenter.org/pubs/2547>

RELUCTANT RESTRAINT examines one of the most important changes in Chinese foreign policy since the country opened to the world: China's gradual move to support the nonproliferation of nuclear weapons, missiles, and their related goods and technologies. Once a critic of the global nonproliferation regime, China is now a supporter of it, although with some reservations. Medeiros analyzes how and why Chinese nonproliferation policies have evolved so substantially since the early 1980s. He argues that U.S. diplomacy has played a significant and enduring role in shaping China's gradual recognition of the dangers of proliferation, and in its subsequent altered behavior.

RELUCTANT RESTRAINT is the eighth book in the Studies in Asian Security series sponsored by the East-West Center and published by Stanford University Press.

WHY TAIWAN? GEOSTRATEGIC RATIONALES FOR CHINA'S TERRITORIAL INTEGRITY, by Alan M. Wachman. Studies in Asian Security. Stanford: Stanford University Press, 2007. 376 pp. Cloth, $65.00. <http://www.eastwestcenter.org/pubs/2250>

Why has Taiwan retained its salience for more than half a century as the principal unresolved territorial claim of the People's Republic of China? The author presents the official perspective of the current Beijing government, its predecessors in the Republican period, and the last imperial dynasties. He demonstrates that a careful look at the historical record casts doubt on the incontestability of Taiwan's status as part of China, and that the general principles used to justify the claim to Taiwan could just as well be applied to other peripheral territories that China no longer attempts to rule. Rather, he argues, Taiwan's distinctiveness derives mainly from its critical geopolitical location.

The original and high quality publications in the peer-reviewed Studies in Asian Security book series present rigorous analyses of key contemporary issues and problems in and affecting peace, security, and conflict management in Asia. With an international editorial board comprising scholars who have done highly reputable work, this series is the principal contribution of the East-West Center in Washington to original academic and policy-relevant scholarship. The Studies in Asian Security book series is published by Stanford University Press. Additional titles can be found at <http://www.eastwestcenter.org/studiesinasiansecurity>. Recent titles in this series include:

BEYOND COMPLIANCE: CHINA, INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS, AND GLOBAL SECURITY, by Ann Kent. Studies in Asian Security. Stanford: Stanford University Press, 2007. 360 pp. Cloth, $65.00. <http://www.eastwestcenter.org/pubs/2112>

DANGEROUS DETERRENT: NUCLEAR WEAPONS PROLIFERATION AND CONFLICT IN SOUTH ASIA, by S. Paul Kapur. Studies in Asian Security. Stanford: Stanford University Press, 2007. 280 pp. Cloth, $65.00; paper, $24.95. <http://www.eastwestcenter.org/pubs/2078>

Search the East-West Center website at <http://www.EastWestCenter.org/publications> for other publications by the East-West Center and its staff. If you have any questions, comments, or need further information, contact the East-West Center Publication Sales Office at ewcbooks@EastWestCenter.org.

East-West Center
Publication Sales Office
1601 East-West Road
Honolulu, HI 96848-1601
USA
Tel: 808.944.7145
Fax: 808.944.7376