AN CHEN is Associate Professor of Political Science at the National University of Singapore. Previously a Research Fellow at the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences, he received his Ph.D. in Political Science from Yale University. His current research focuses on China’s rural reform.

CHRISTOPHER EDMONDS (Ph.D., University of California–Berkeley, 1998) is an Economist, Asian Development Bank, Manila, Philippines, and an Adjunct East-West Center Fellow. He has extensive experience working on economic projects and research in Asia for several organizations (e.g. International Rice Research Institute). His books (e.g., Reducing Poverty in Asia) and articles cover many topics related to economic development in Asia.

DIETER ERNST is Senior Fellow at the East-West Center. He was senior advisor to the OECD and research director at the Berkeley Roundtable, University of California-Berkeley. His research covers global production and innovation networks and implications for industrial and technology policies. His books include Technological Capabilities and Export Success in Asia, What are the Limits to the Korean Model?, International Production Networks in Asia, and Innovation Offshoring - Asia's Emerging Role in Global Innovation Networks.

JIAN GAO is a Professor of Entrepreneurship and Innovation at the School of Economics and Management, Tsinghua University, Beijing, PRC, where he also received his Ph.D. in 1996. He has been a Visiting Scholar at the Sloan School of Management at MIT, a Price-Babson Fellow at Babson College, and a Visiting Scholar at the Graduate School of Business at Stanford University.

MARYANNE KIVLEHAN-WISE is the Deputy Director of the CNA Corporation's Project Asia. She is co-editor of China's Leadership in the 21st Century: The Rise of the Fourth Generation and The Chinese Media System: Continuity, Chaos, and Change (forthcoming). She holds an MA from The George Washington University, and is a graduate of the Hopkins-Nanjing Center for Chinese and American Studies.
SUMNER LA CROIX (Ph.D., University of Washington, 1981) is Professor of Economics and Population at the University of Hawaii. His research on China has analyzed foreign direct investment; the political economy of economic reform; energy use; intellectual property rights; and international aviation markets.

YAO LI is currently a Degree Fellow at the East-West Center as well as a PhD candidate in the Department of Economics at the University of Hawaii-Manoa. Her research interests include international trade theory, trade policy, and regional development.

CHRISTOPHER A. MCNALLY is Research Fellow at the East-West Center in Honolulu. As a political economist, his research focuses on contemporary varieties of capitalism, especially the nature and logic of China’s capitalist transition. He is also studying the implications of China’s growing economic power on East Asia’s regional order. Most recently, he authored publications in The China Quarterly and Comparative Social Research.

YINHONG SHI is Professor of International Relations and Director of the Center for American Studies at Renmin University, Beijing, PRC. He spent years in research and teaching at institutions in the U.S., Germany, and Japan. He has published 11 books and 340 articles. Many of them have had wide influence in China and some have become influential internationally.

IAN STOREY is a Visiting Fellow at the Institute of Southeast Asian Studies, Singapore. His areas of specialization include Southeast Asian security issues, ASEAN-China relations, and maritime security. He has held positions at the Asia-Pacific Center for Security Studies in Honolulu (USA), and at Deakin University in Victoria (Australia). He was educated in Great Britain, Japan, and Hong Kong.

PAUL VEGA is a Consultant with the Asia House of McKinsey & Co., which specializes on cross-border topics relating to Asia. He holds a PhD from the University of St. Gallen and an MSc from the London School of Economics. He was a Doctoral Fellow at INSEAD and Wharton-SMU in Singapore, and completed his thesis on venture capital finance in China.
STEVEN WHITE is Associate Professor at the China Europe International Business School (CEIBS) in Shanghai, PRC. He studies two major issues related to fit: strategic fit focusing on organizational change and innovation; and relational fit focusing on control, cooperation and value in interorganizational relationships. He holds a Ph.D. in Management from MIT.

PETER WILLIAMSON is Professor of International Management and Asian Business at INSEAD in Fontainebleau, France, and Singapore. Author of seven books, his latest, Dragons at Your Door: How Chinese Cost Innovation is Disrupting Global Competition, will be published by Harvard Business School Press in May 2007. Formerly at The Boston Consulting Group, he acts as consultant and serves on the boards of several listed companies. He holds a Ph.D in Business Economics from Harvard University.

KANG WU is Senior Fellow at the East-West Center, where he conducts research on energy and economic policy issues with a focus on the Asia-Pacific region. He also leads the Center’s China energy research and is the author and co-author of numerous journal articles, project reports, professional studies, conference papers, book chapters, and other publications.

MING ZENG is Professor of Strategy at the Cheung Kong Graduate School of Business, Beijing, PRC. He has conducted extensive research on the growth strategies of Chinese companies and published widely in the world’s top management journals. His book co-authored with Peter Williamson, Dragons at your Door, will be published by Harvard Business School Press in 2007. He was also a faculty member at INSEAD from 1998-2004.

WEI ZHANG is an Associate Professor at the School of Economics and Management, Tsinghua University, Beijing, PRC. His research interests focus on entrepreneurship and venture capital. He was a visiting scholar at the Stanford Graduate School of Business and Price-Babson College Fellow (SEE-20).