INSTITUTE ON INFUSING CHINA AND KOREA INTO THE UNDERGRADUATE CURRICULUM

DATE: JULY 25 – AUGUST 12, 2011

LOCATION: EAST-WEST CENTER, HONOLULU, HAWAII

ASDP will be offering its 21st annual Summer Institute on Infusing Asian Studies into the Undergraduate Curriculum. Designed to meet the needs of individual teachers and institutional teams from both two-year and four-year colleges and universities, the Infusing Institutes take a faculty-development approach to enhancing teaching and learning about Asian cultures and societies that features lectures, discussions, films screenings and site visits in a seminar-like environment of shared inquiry.

The 2011 Institute will focus on China and Korea, and will be directed by Stanley Murashige. A frequent and popular presenter at ASDP institutes and workshops, Dr. Murashige is Professor of Asian Art History at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago. On the premise that contemporary dynamics are best understood in historical context, the first two weeks of the program will feature presentations and discussions on Chinese and Korean religious and philosophical traditions; art; literature; and historical dynamics through the 20th century. Focus shifts in the final week to 20th century history and the complexion of contemporary politics, economics and social issues in China and Korea. An institute website will provide participants with readings selected by the presenting faculty, lecture notes and powerpoints (as possible), bibliographies, sample syllabi, and other resources useful in developing new courses or course modules with significant Chinese and/or Korean content.

Individual participants are expected to develop a relevant teaching product (e.g., a new course module, a substantially revised course syllabus or an annotated bibliography) that reflects the Institute program content. Institutional teams are also expected to draft a brief plan for the further development of undergraduate Asian studies on their home campuses.

Participant is responsible for roundtrip airfare to Honolulu and the program fee of $350.00. Lodging in the East-West Center guesthouse and a modest stipend will be provided.
