ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

• The February 11, 2013 program is supported by the Offices of Academic Affairs and Student Affairs, Community College of Philadelphia; the National Endowment of the Humanities, and the Asian Studies Development Program of the East West Center/University of Hawaii.

• Community College of Philadelphia has been an ASDP Regional Center since 1998.

• For further information about the NEH/ASDP Project and Community College of Philadelphia’s International Programs, please contact Fay Beauchamp, Professor of English and Director, Center for International Understanding, fbeauchamp@ccp.edu or call 215-751-8668 at Community College of Philadelphia.

Any views, findings, conclusions, or recommendations expressed in this program do not necessarily reflect those of the National Endowment for the Humanities.
COMMUNITY COLLEGE OF PHILADELPHIA will host Dr. Ban Wang, Stanford University, as part of a three-year project, funded by the National Endowment of the Humanities (NEH) and organized by the Asian Studies Development Program (ASDP) of the East West Center/University of Hawaii. This February 11 event follows a NEH-ASDP Bridging Cultures seminar in July, 2012 when ten faculty from Community College of Philadelphia, Camden County College and Harrisburg Area Community College studied the theme “Thinking Through Cultural Diversity: Bridging Cultural Differences in Asian Traditions.”

Through ASPD and NEH, Dr. Ban Wang, Professor of Comparative Literature at Stanford University, will host lectures and discussion sessions at Community College of Philadelphia.

DR. BAN WANG is Professor of Asian Languages and Comparative Literature at Stanford University. His courses explore how aesthetics and politics intertwine and break apart in Western and Eastern traditions. He received his Ph.D. from UCLA. In addition to his research on Chinese and comparative literature, he has written on English and French literatures, psychoanalysis, international politics, and cinema. He has been a recipient of research fellowships from the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Institute for Advanced Studies at Princeton. He has taught at Beijing Foreign Studies University, SUNY-Stonybrook, Harvard University, and Rutgers University. His current project is tentatively entitled China and the World: Geopolitics, Aesthetics, and Cosmopolitanism.

EVENT SCHEDULE

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 11

8:45–9:45 a.m.  Breakfast  Community College of Philadelphia Boardroom  RSVP required

Professor Fay Beauchamp
Director, Center for International Understanding
Welcome

Dr. Peter Hershock
East West Center, ASDP Co-chair
Introduction to the Asian Studies Development Program’s NEH Bridging Cultures Project

10:20–11:20 a.m.  Landscapes of Home and Memory in Chinese Literature and Film: Lecture Part I  Winnet Student Life Building, S2-19

11:30 a.m.–12:30 p.m.  Landscapes of Home and Memory in Chinese Literature and Film: Lecture Part II and Q&A  Winnet Student Life Building, S2-19

12:45–1:45 p.m.  Lunch  Rose Tattoo, 1847 Callowhill Street, Philadelphia, PA  Registered faculty participants

2:15–3:45 p.m.  Discussion with Professor Ban Wang  Center for Business and Industry Building, C3-5  Based on earlier lectures, teaching contemporary Chinese film and literature and integrating into philosophy, religion, art history, literature, and film courses will be discussed. Registration required. Open to faculty and interested students.