

Dr. Ronny Adhikarya

1970s Alumnus

Dr. Ronny Adhikarya has had a 45yr career in intl. development assistance, serving for the World Bank, United Nations, and other international orgs. Ronny was an EWC Communications Institute's Researcher (1972-74) and Fellow (on/off - 1976-80). After retirement from the World Bank in 2003, he was reappointed as the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO)/United Nations Representative & Chief of Missions in Pakistan.

Originally from Indonesia, Ronny has undertaken professional assignments and official missions in 52 countries, and travelled to a total of 103 countries. He has written 8 books on communication and education subjects published in Germany, Italy, England, USA, Singapore, Indonesia, and Malaysia as well as numerous book-chapters, journal articles, and consulting reports.

Ronny has served on international advisory boards/committees of several leading development and educational orgs. in areas including Singapore, Thailand, England, and Switzerland. He has an M.A. from Cornell and Ph.D. from Stanford. He now lives in "Silicon Valley" in CA, and Honolulu, HI, where he also serves as a member of the Board of Directors of the Hawaii-Indonesia Chamber Commerce (HICHAM), and the Exec. Board of the East-West Center Association (EWCA).

EAST-WEST
CENTER