1960s Alumnus

An early EWC student grant recipient, Sudjiran Resosudarmo received his M.A. in Geography from UHM in 1965; followed by a Ph.D in 1975. Despite deteriorating relations between the US & Indonesia in the 1960's, Sudjiran's mentoring of American students interested in Indonesia was the embodiment of EWC ideals. He helped them prepare for study in Indonesia. Sudjiran began his teaching career in Bali during the prolonged struggle for Indonesian independence, then moved to Jakarta, teaching in primary and secondary schools. There he met his wife, Satimah. They raised 4, very accomplished, children. In the early 1960's, Sudjiran joined the newly-established teacher training institute, IKIP. He devoted his career to IKIP, becoming Professor of Geography, and Rector, as well as the government coordinator for all private universities in Jakarta.
