Prospects of APC-Okinawa Toward Sustainable Development and Peace

In view of Sustainable Development and Peace in Asia Pacific region, an idea is proposed as to building an international exchange center in Okinawa and expanding networks further for education, research and training in the region. This presentation provides prospects of such an international center by maintaining dialogue among academic communities and concerned individuals in the region through prevailing concepts like Education for Sustainable Development (ESD), Open Educational Resources (OER) with a focus on human resources as Soft Power. It also explores ways in which the idea could be materialized with appropriate and workable mechanisms in cooperation with local and national governments, international agencies, academic institutions and NPOs.
